Last Stop on Market Street

By Matt de la Pena, Illustrated by Christian Robinson | Winner of the 2016 Newbery Medal |
Adapted for the stage by Gloria Bond Clunie

About the show

This New York Times-bestselling and Newbery Medal-winning book makes its world premiere! After church every Sunday, CJ and his Nana board the bus for a trip across town. But one day, CJ asks why don't they own a car like his friend Colby. Why doesn't he have an iPod like the other boys on the bus? And why do they have to make the same trip every Sunday? In this powerful look at the beauty all around us, Nana helps CJ begin to experience the world from a whole new perspective by teaching him to listen with more than just his ears.

Show sponsors

Special thanks to Dorlisa and Peter Flur. Additional support from Rodgers and K&L Gates. The Dreamer Series is sponsored by The Leon Levine Foundation - Sandra and Leon Levine. The Adventurer Series is sponsored by Black-Arch Partners. This show is a part of The Kindness Project.

Last Stop on Market Street* is all about looking for the good in the world around us, even when things seem so different from our own lives. Watch what happens when CJ's Sunday adventure with his Nana becomes a whole new wonderful world to him.....

From all of us at Children's Theatre of Charlotte, we hope you enjoy the show.

Follow along the performance of Last Stop on Market Street and look for moments of kindness throughout the production!

Meet CJ. He is spending his Sunday with his Nana, just like he does every week. But today, CJ will go on a whole new adventure to find out just how wonderful the world around him really is!

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

CJ and Nana go to church, and CJ gets to sing a solo with the choir! CJ even has a riddle for Reverend Morgan. But wait....Reverend Morgan has a riddle for CJ, too?

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

CJ and Nana are walking to the bus stop. Do you think he really wants to go on his weekly Sunday adventure with Nana?

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

CJ and Nana have to wait for their bus. But this wait is anything but boring when Nana is there to show CJ a whole new way to see the world!

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

Reading and knitting helps CJ and Nana pass the time while they wait for the bus. But what makes this trash can so interesting? Isn't it just for trash?

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

Finally! The Dragon Bus is here! We know Nana sees the world from a fun and happy view. What do you think CJ will learn about riding on the bus today?

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

Here's the next group of travelers to join CJ and Nana on the bus. They each have a story to tell, and they're going to show CJ what it really means to connect with people around him.

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

CJ's new friends help him use his imagination to see the world differently, without even using his eyes!

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

CJ is really learning from his Nana - watch what happens when he even makes a new friend using his imagination!

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

CJ and Nana have come to the last stop on Market Street. CJ has learned so much today - what do you think he will see when he gets off the bus this time?

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

The Last Stop on Market Street has become a whole new world for CJ. Watch what happens to his connection with this world now that he really “sees” everyone there!

Where do you see people being kind to each other?

Thanks for joining us at Children’s Theatre of Charlotte for this special performance. We hope to see you at our other sensory-friendly performances in the future. For details, visit: ctcharlotte.org/online/article/sensory-friendly-performances.
